A dementia inspection apparatus includes an answer obtaining section and a dementia degree inspecting section. The answer obtaining section obtains answers made within predetermined answer time limits to the first and second examination charts. The first examination chart has inspection sentences where a character group constituting a story including color words each representing color is tinted with plural colors such that individual color word has characters of the same color, requires a determination as to whether the color of characters constituting the color word is the same color as color represented by the color word. The second examination chart has a combination of questions concerning contents of the inspection sentences and answers which are prepared for each question and one of which is to be selected. The dementia degree inspection section determines a dementia degree of the subject based on the answers obtained by the answer obtaining section.
